ABOUT PATRICK VALENZA

Born and raised on Long Island, New York, Patrick Valenza began training himself as an artist during his childhood. His art developed as a way to explore his experiences and share his stories with others, through pictures rather than words. Patrick also discovered the tarot at an early age. Intrigued with the medieval characters portrayed on the cards, he studied them intently for years.

Most of Patrick's creative influences come from non-traditional sources. The imagery for Deviant Moon Tarot is derived from childhood visions seen through his imagination and carried into adulthood, particularly the cemeteries he enjoyed playing in as a child. Also incorporated into his artwork are the melancholy moonlit scenes of distant factory smoke stacks, insane asylums, and abandoned buildings.

Patrick earned his M.A. from S.U.N.Y. Stony Brook. Still living on Long Island with his wife and two children, he currently works as an art teacher and storybook illustrator. Patrick's work has recently evolved from detailed colored pencil and acrylic illustrations into photographic manipulations in combination with digital drawings. His hobbies still include tiptoeing through 18th century New England graveyards as well as exploring abandoned buildings.

THE CREATION OF DEVIANT MOON TAROT

The Deviant Moon Tarot deck was created using various forms of photographic manipulation. Each card began with a complete drawing, which was then scanned into the computer where I applied various photographic textures. Nineteenth-century tombstones provide most of the clothing worn by the citizens of the Deviant Moon. I bent, twisted, and reformed my photos to become capes, boots, hats and trim. One of the best aspects of creating the deck was “hunting” for specific textures as I respectfully tiptoed around the graveyards of eastern Long Island, New York. Background buildings were created with photographs I took of a local abandoned insane asylum. Rotted doors, windows and walls became castles, factories and cities.

My character stylization was influenced by ancient Greek art, yet I added a slightly abstracted twist. I chose to draw the figures in a flat, playing card style, rendering them with heavy light and shadows, then placing them in a shallow background.

As I worked, different styles emerged, and before long the characters evolved into the moon-faced beings seen in the cards.

Symbolism for the deck comes from childhood dreams and imagination that carried itself into my adult world. I have always been intrigued with the melancholy side of life and have sought to express my visions through the characters I create. The moon has always been a psychic friend to me. As the sentinel of the night, it feeds my dreams and casts a strange glow on the way I see the colors of reality.

Nothing has had a greater influence over my art than the tarot itself. I first discovered the tarot at the age of nine. I was captivated by the unique characters I saw on each card and studied the artwork intensely. My favorites were the old nineteenth century and medieval decks. While my classmates were drawing what children normally do, I was busy making my own little pictures of the fool or the magician. Over the years, I have made many attempts to create my own deck, but never completed more than a few cards each time. I held the ideas of my early random creations and revitalized them here in the Deviant Moon Tarot.

While this physical deck took over three years to complete, from an inspirational standpoint, Deviant Moon Tarot has been at least thirty years in the making. It is not only a testament to my art, but a record of my life.
